

VIEWPOINT

THRESHOLD FINANCIAL SERVICES LTD

---

Thanks for reading our newsletter. If you want to discuss any of the articles in more detail, please get in touch.

PART OF
— THE —
Openwork
PARTNERSHIP

Considerations for first-time buyers

Being a first-time buyer can be daunting. Not only are you about to make one of the biggest financial decisions in your life, but you'll probably also have family members and friends offering their ideas on the right house, mortgage, lender, conveyancer and even removal company for you.

We've put together some ideas to try and take away some of the stress and confusion and give you confidence to move through the home buying process as smoothly as possible.

Get the right advice

Of course, we're going to say that – it's what we do! We'll review your circumstances and look at your income, debt, day-to-day outgoings, employment and the size of your deposit, to assess what you can afford to borrow now and in the future. We'll talk you through the types of mortgages we think are right for you and the lenders who offer them.

Save as much as possible

Buying a house is going to be expensive so it's important to save, save, save to get yourself in the best position possible. Some lenders will accept a minimum deposit of 5% of the cost of the house you're buying but aim higher. The bigger your deposit, the smaller the mortgage (and monthly mortgage payments) making you more attractive to a lender.

Compromise

We can all admit that it is easy to get a little carried away when looking for our 'dream' home, but sometimes buying your first house is all about compromise. Deciding what you're prepared to compromise on is an essential step when considering your first home. Whether it's the luxury of having extra bedrooms or a bigger garden, it's unlikely that you're going to get everything you want at a price you can afford.

Know your budget

Your hard-saved deposit and monthly mortgage repayments aren't the only expenses you need to be mindful of when buying your first home:

- Some lenders will charge for a valuation fee to help them establish how much they are prepared to lend you.
- You'll also need to factor in the cost of a survey (depending on the type of property you're buying and the lender you choose to go with you might need a basic mortgage valuation, a homebuyers report or a full structural survey).
- In Scotland you also need to budget for Land and Buildings Transaction Tax on properties over £175,000.
- In Wales you'll need to budget for Land Transaction Tax on properties over £225,000.
- In England or Northern Ireland, you'll need to budget for Stamp Duty Land Tax on properties over £425,000.
- You'll also need to pay your solicitor or conveyancer for any legal work and local searches they do on your behalf.

Talk to us and we can help with practical financial advice on your first and future home purchases.

YOUR HOME MAY BE REPOSSESSED IF YOU DO NOT KEEP UP REPAYMENTS ON YOUR MORTGAGE

What is critical illness cover?

Whether you need critical illness protection depends on your situation as well as any existing policies you might already have in place.

Critical illness insurance pays out a one-off, lump sum if you're diagnosed with a condition or disability that is covered by your policy. It can be offered when someone applies for life insurance – as extra coverage.

In a similar way to some life insurance plans, critical illness covers a set number of years. You can specify whether you want the payout to rise over the course of the term (so it keeps up with inflation) or the opposite – decreasing because your aim is to cover something specific like your mortgage.

If you're thinking about critical illness cover, it's important to speak to your financial adviser who can help you decide how much cover you'll need and how long the term should last.

What does critical illness cover?

Products vary depending on the provider. Certain illnesses are covered as standard by most insurers, including, cancer, heart attack, stroke, organ failure, multiple sclerosis, loss of arms or legs and Alzheimer's and Parkinson's disease.

Some providers may allow you to add additional illnesses to your policy, which you'll pay more for. Your children could also be covered as part of your policy so it's worth asking your adviser about these options if it's something you're keen to have in place.

What does critical illness not cover?

Although a diagnosis of a critical illness can mark the start of a claim in some policies, others may only begin to offer protection once your illness hits a certain level of severity. For example, if you are diagnosed with cancer, payments may only begin when permanent symptoms have been officially diagnosed. Additionally, not all types of cancer are necessarily covered by critical illness protection.

It's important to work with your financial adviser when reviewing a policy and all the small print before you commit to make sure you are sufficiently covered – and aware of areas not included.

Pre-existing conditions

Just like the life insurance application process, critical illness protection requires you to disclose any pre-existing conditions. If you don't then your policy could be invalid.

Your adviser can search the market for a suitable plan, but you'll probably have to pay more in premiums and there will likely be some extra exclusions. The price you pay will vary, based on things like age, occupation, state of health, lifestyle and how much coverage you need and for how long.

Do you need critical illness cover?

There are things to consider if you're worried about being diagnosed with a critical illness and the impact on your income and ability to keep up with bills (which would not be covered by state benefits when you're unable to work).

Your adviser will help you look at the following areas:

- Your employer's coverage – is there any paid leave for illness or disability and for how long?
- Do you have an existing life insurance policy and if so, does it have any illness coverage included?
- Could you consider income protection insurance as an alternative to critical illness?
- Do you have sufficient savings and investments you could use in place of critical illness cover?

If you want to proceed, it's important to work with your adviser to see how much protection you'll need. This means looking at your monthly outgoings and how much you and your family require to live comfortably. You might want to add in any potential costs from medical treatment you may need.

During these important decisions it's easy to lose track of the small details, which is why your adviser can help make the process easier for you and your family and give you some peace of mind.

We can examine your needs and existing policies and then find you the right cover that protects your finances – and your family – should anything happen.

Here's how financial protection can offer security for parents

Serious illness can place immense stress on our families. The cost of caring for an unwell child, worry over access to essential services, and the emotional toll of serious illness are all things that no parent wants to think about.

We can't predict what the future will hold for the health of our families, but we can take proactive steps to prepare for the risk that we or our children might become critically unwell.

Appropriate financial protection can be a vital safety net for parents, providing essential cover for children and easing the pressure of caring for them.

Critical illness payouts can help you care for your child

No parent wants to consider the possibility of their child becoming seriously ill, but planning for the worst can offer the greatest peace of mind. Robust and appropriate financial protection can help shore up your finances and allow you to focus on caring for your child.

Critical illness cover pays out a lump sum if you are diagnosed with an illness covered by the policy. Many of these policies include cover for a child of the policyholder, paying out a proportion of the full amount if they become seriously ill. This payout provides a financial safety net, covering your expenses and allowing you to take time away from work to care for your child.

Critical illness cover may also come with other benefits that can offer further support for your family, such as:

- A payout if your child is hospitalised because of an accident.
- Cover for the cost of accommodation so that you can be close to your child if they're in hospital.
- Childcare costs if you're diagnosed with a serious illness that's covered by your policy.

The cost of critical illness cover varies depending on how large you want a potential payout to be, as well as other factors like your age and general health. It's important to note that you'll only be covered as long as you keep paying your premiums.

Children are often automatically included in critical illness cover but this isn't guaranteed. Contact your provider for clarification and be aware that your premiums could rise if you add a child to a policy that doesn't already cover them.

Cover for a child typically starts from the first few weeks after birth and lasts until they're 18, or 21 if they're in full-time education, but this can vary between providers. There may be other restrictions to critical illness cover that you should be aware of – some policies will only allow one claim per child whilst others might exclude certain conditions that are present from birth.

It's important to check the details of critical illness cover thoroughly when comparing your option to make sure that you're buying the right cover for your circumstances.

Private medical insurance could help provide better care for your family

You may want to consider taking out private medical insurance to compliment the security that financial protection could offer you. The Guardian reports that the private health insurance market has grown by £385 million in the last year. At the same time, rising wait times and staff shortages are causing public satisfaction with the NHS to slump according to the long-running British Social Attitudes survey.

Private medical insurance can help to put your mind at ease by reducing waiting times for a range of services (like tests and consultations) whilst giving you a wider choice of treatment providers. It could also help to cover the cost of a private room, giving you and your family greater privacy if you need to stay in hospital overnight.

Private health insurance can cover much more than just physical illness. Some providers offer access to counselling and mental health services which are becoming increasingly important for the wellbeing of younger generations – the number of children and young people seeking support for their mental health increased by 25% from 2022 to 2023 according to data from Aviva.

The cost of private health insurance and the level of cover you'll receive are influenced by a range of factors, including who you want the policy to cover, your lifestyle, and family medical history. It's important to take the time to understand how comprehensive your options are and any exclusions that might affect your family.

Talk to us to see how we can help protect your family

Financial protection is just one way that you can prepare for the unexpected. Get in touch if you'd like to know more about financial protection for your family against serious illness.

Please note: Financial protection plans typically have no cash in value at any time and cover will cease at the end of the term. Cover will lapse if premiums are unpaid. Cover is subject to terms and conditions and may have exclusions. Definition of illnesses vary between providers and will be explained in policy documentation.

Cost of living crisis: Why you should review your budget and plans

The cost of living is rising. Reviewing your finances now is crucial for understanding what effect inflation could have on your lifestyle and long-term plans.

Inflation was at an almost 40-year high. In the 12 months to August 2022, it was 9.9%. There are several factors contributing to rising inflation, including the conflict in Ukraine, which has disrupted energy and food supplies.

Rising inflation means now is the ideal time to review your budget

Keeping track of your finances during the cost of living crisis is crucial. In the short term, you should review your budget. Can your budget absorb the higher costs, or do you need to make lifestyle changes?

The Bank of England expects inflation to peak at around 13%. It's also said it doesn't expect the rate to fall to its target of 2% for several years.

So, you should look at what that means for you in the coming years. Will rising energy prices mean you need to be more mindful of energy use or cut back expenses in other areas?

While the headline inflation figure can give you an idea of how prices are changing, your personal inflation rate may be very different. If you commute long distances, for instance, the steep rise in fuel costs may mean your outgoings rise more than you expect.

Going through your budget and calculating how your regular costs have changed in the last year can help you better manage your finances.

In some cases, you may decide to draw on savings or other assets to bridge a gap if your expenses rise. You should ensure this is sustainable.

The steps you take could affect your long-term plans

While it's important to focus on how the cost of living crisis is affecting your finances now, don't forget to consider the long-term effects too. Decisions you make now could affect your income and financial security for years to come.

If you're using assets to create an income, such as your pension, you need to be aware of how increased withdrawals may affect you. Could taking a higher income from your pension now to cover costs mean that you deplete your savings faster than you expect? If so, it could mean you face an income shortfall later in life.

Research also suggests that some people are cutting back outgoings that could improve long-term financial security. According to Canada Life, 5% of adults have already stopped contributing to their workplace pension due to budget pressures. A further 6% are actively thinking about pausing their pension contributions.

While pausing contributions for a few months may seem like it will have little effect on your retirement, it can be larger than you think. The power of compounding means that pausing pension contributions for just a year could reduce the value of your pension at retirement by 4%.

It's not just stopping pension contributions that could affect your long-term plans. Things like reducing how much you add to your savings account or investment portfolio could affect whether you can reach your goals in the future, whether that's to support children through university or retire early.

Contact us to review your finances

Amid the current economic uncertainty, reviewing your financial plan can give you peace of mind and confidence. We'll help you understand how your current budget has been affected and the steps you can take now to create long-term financial security.

Please contact us to arrange a meeting to discuss your goals and the effect the cost of living crisis could have.

